April 20, 2018 Chop Suey is only one of the many American classics on the menu at Bacchanalia's new downtown San Diego restaurant. Featuring dishes like General Tso's Pork and Black and White Cheddar Potato Chips, the menu offers all of the tasty American classics so many San Diegans are familiar with. The cuisine is influenced by the flavors of San Diego's growing international population, but Bacchanalia's restaurateurs wanted to blend those influences with their own style. Some of the most popular dishes on the menu include the Chicken Paradise, featuring seasoned breaded chicken with a lemon chili dipping sauce. For those with a spicy appetite, try the Teriyaki Chicken Wings or Chicken Mole, while to satisfy those who like it on the sweeter side, go for the Chocolate Chip Cookie Roll. All of the choices are options that San Diegans are accustomed to but haven't seen on menus in years. Bacchanalia said this new location of the restaurant features what should be popular because of its wide variety. "We've got some new dishes that customers haven't tasted in a long time, such as the Chorizo and Pulled Pork," said Bacchanalia Restaurant CEO Sergio Miller. "There's something for everybody, even the vegetarians." Some of the most popular dishes on the menu at Bacchanalia are the General Tso's Pork, with garlic, ginger, green onion and green chili, as well as the Black and White Cheddar Potato Chips, with bacon, green onion and cheddar cheese. The restaurant offers a four-course prix fixe menu for $30 or a five-course menu for $35. Beverages are also offered, with Bacchanalia having a cocktail menu that includes popular items such as the Cosmopolitan and pina colada. Customers can also expect reservations to be available Monday through Saturday
